

	UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
1
2
3
4
5	ALFRED BANKS, ET AL.,
6	Plaintiffs,
7	vs.
8	COUNTY OF SAN MATEO,
9	Defendant.
10	MICHAEL THATCHER, ET AL.,
11	Plaintiffs,
12	vs.
13	COUNTY OF SANTA CLARA,
14	Defendant.
15	CHARLENE HARRIS, ET AL.,
16	Plaintiffs,
17	vs.
18	COUNTY OF CONTRA COSTA,
19	Defendant.
20	JACQUELYNNE M. CLARK-RUSSELL, ET AL.,
21	Plaintiffs,
22	vs.
23	COUNTY OF ALAMEDA,
24	Defendant.

25           Plaintiffs in the above-captioned putative class actions have brought these actions against 26 defendant counties of San Mateo, Santa Clara, Contra Costa, and Alameda for alleged violations

---

27
28           <sup>1</sup> Unless otherwise specified, the docket numbers and documents referenced herein shall refer to the docket in Banks v. County of San Mateo, Case No. 16-CV-4455 (N.D. Cal.).

1 related to exclusive grants of telephone servicing contracts inside county prison facilities that have 2 allegedly resulted in grossly excessive commissions for such services. The Court previously 3 granted defendants' motion to dismiss, dismissing plaintiffs' claims: (i) Sherman Act claims with 4 prejudice; (ii) First Amendment right of association claims without prejudice; (iii) Fifth
5 Amendment claims for unconstitutional conditions and unlawful takings with prejudice; and (iv)
6 Fourteenth Amendment equal protections claims with prejudice. On September 9, 2017, plaintiffs
7 filed amended complaints, re-alleging their claims under the First Amendment.<sup>2</sup>

8 Currently before the Court are defendants' motions to dismiss the amended complaints, 9 arguing that plaintiffs have failed to allege materially different facts that would be consistent with 10 this Court's prior order dismissing the First Amendment claims. Plaintiffs concede that they have 11 not "asserted substantially different or additional operative facts from those asserted in the 12 previous complaint(s)." (Dkt. No. 72 at 7.) Rather, they argue that the modifications have been 13 presented in what "they consider the strongest possible framework to address the validity of their 14 First Amendment claim." (Id.) Thus, essentially, in filing their amended complaints, plaintiffs are 15 asking this Court to reconsider its prior order outside of the context of a motion for 16 reconsideration.

17 In light of the plaintiffs' concessions, the filing of their amended complaints can only be 18 viewed as an attempt to seek reconsideration of the Court's prior order. Plaintiffs' actions are 19 procedurally improper, and, in any event, plaintiffs fail to satisfy the standards for granting a 20 motion for reconsideration. See School Dist. No. 1J v. ACandsS, Inc., 5 F.3d 1255, 1263 (9th Cir.
21 1993) ("Reconsideration is appropriate if the district court (1) is presented with newly discovered 22 evidence, (2) committed clear error or the initial decision was manifestly unjust, or (3) if there is 23 an intervening change in controlling law."); see also Kona Enters., Inc. v. Estate of Bishop, 229 24 F.3d 877, 890 (9th Cir. 2000) (reconsideration of a prior ruling is an "extraordinary remedy, to be

---

25
26       <sup>2</sup> The amended complaints are as follows: (i) Banks v. San Mateo, No. 16-CV-4455, Dkt.
27 No. 69 ("Banks/San Mateo Third Amended Complaint" or "Banks/San Mateo TAC"); (ii)
28 Thatcher v. Santa Clara, No. 16-CV-4781, Dkt. No. 63 (addressing a second amended complaint ("SAC"), the "Thatcher/Santa Clara SAC"); (iii) Harris v. Contra Costa, No. 16-CV-4795, Dkt.
No. 55 ("Harris/Contra Costa SAC"); and (iv) Clark-Russell v. Alameda, No. 16-CV-4816, Dkt.
No. 53 ("Clark-Russell/Alameda SAC").

1 used sparingly”).<sup>3</sup> Additionally, because the amended complaints contain essentially the same
2 facts already deemed by this Court to be insufficient, the Court finds that they fail again for the 3 reasons stated in its prior order dismissing such claims. (Dkt. No. 68 at 17–21.) Nevertheless, the 4 Court addresses plaintiffs’ arguments briefly:<sup>4</sup>

5 First, plaintiffs argue that the counties have provided a non-public forum by providing 6 telephone access, and thus, restrictions on the same are subject to reasonableness standards.<sup>5</sup>
7 Within that context, plaintiffs contend, the inmates’ speech on the telephone is protected under the 8 First Amendment and is subject to the four-part test for reasonableness set forth in Turner v.
9 Safley, 482 U.S. 78 (1987). As an initial matter, the case cited by plaintiffs with regard to the 10 establishment of a “non-public forum” does not relate to the cost of jail phone calls and is, largely,
11 inapposite. See Currier, 379 F.3d at 722 (addressing access to delivery mail service and no-fee 12 postal boxes to homeless persons). In any event, plaintiffs fail to explain why this characterization 13 is relevant in the present circumstances. As the Court previously found, the Ninth Circuit has 14 defined the precise First Amendment right at issue in this litigation, and has set forth the 15 framework for determining whether a regulation that impinges upon that right is constitutional.
16 Valdez v. Rosenbaum, 302 F.3d 1039, 1048 (9th Cir. 2002). Within that context, the Court found 17

---

18         <sup>3</sup> Moreover, pursuant to Civil Local Rule 7-9(a), no party may “notice a motion for 19 reconsideration without first obtaining leave of Court to file the motion.” To prevail on a motion 20 seeking leave to file a motion for reconsideration, the party seeking leave must demonstrate: (i) 21 that at the time of the motion for leave, a material difference in fact or law existed from that which 22 was presented to the court before entry of the order; (ii) the emergence of new material facts or a 23 change of law occurring after the time of such order; or (iii) a manifest failure by the court to 24 consider material facts or dispositive arguments. Id.

25         <sup>4</sup> The Court adopts the Background section and discussion of legal standards set forth in 26 its prior order dismissing the complaints in the above-captioned actions. (See Dkt. No. 68.)
27 Additionally, the Court finds that the instant motions can be resolved without a hearing.
28 Accordingly, the Court VACATES the hearing currently set for October 24, 2017.

29         <sup>5</sup> The Ninth Circuit has held that constitutional review over governmental regulations 30 restricting First Amendment rights in a non-public forum—fora that have not been categorized as 31 “public fora” such as streets, parks, or designated platforms for expressive conduct—are less 32 exacting. See Currier v. Potter, 379 F.3d 716, 728 (9th Cir. 2004). With respect to non-public 33 fora, “[i]n addition to time, place, and manner regulations, the State may reserve the forum for its 34 intended purposes, communicative or otherwise, as long as the regulation on speech is reasonable 35 and not an effort to suppress expression merely because public officials oppose the speaker’s 36 view.” Id. (citation omitted).

1 that plaintiffs failed to allege the imposition of any regulations or restrictions that prevent them
2 from using the telephone for communications. Plaintiffs have not raised any new arguments in 3 this regard.<sup>6</sup> Thus, for the same reasons, the Court finds that plaintiffs have failed to satisfy the 4 pleading standards here.

5 Second, plaintiffs renew their argument that the commissions should be characterized as 6 taxes and are therefore subject to scrutiny under Minneapolis Star & Tribune Co., 460 U.S. 575,
7 582 (1983), which held broadly that “taxes” on the exercise of protected speech must be justified
8 by an “overriding governmental interest.” Id. (invalidating a tax on the “cost of paper and ink
9 products consumed in the production of a publication” because it singled out the press for special 10 treatment). Previously, the Court rejected plaintiffs’ arguments in this regard, finding that the 11 proper framework for analyzing a First Amendment violation in this context falls under the Ninth 12 Circuit’s rulings in Valdez.<sup>7</sup> Plaintiffs raise no new arguments in this context, and fail to 13 demonstrate how this distinction would affect the overall analysis.

14 Third, and finally, plaintiffs add a new argument that, if the California courts find that the 15 commissions are unlawful under state law, they necessarily violate plaintiffs’ First Amendment
16

---

17 <sup>6</sup> Plaintiffs argue that the Court erred in determining that the existence of alternative means of communication extinguishes the constitutional interest at issue. The Court, however, did 18 not so find. Rather, the Court found that in light of the Ninth Circuit’s decisions in Valdez, no impingement of the inmate’s rights of communication under the First Amendment was committed 19 because the inmates continued to have access to telephones. The Ninth Circuit opined in Johnson 20 v. California, 207 F.3d 650 (9th Cir. 2000) that a First Amendment violation could exist in this context if the prices for telephone access were so “exorbitant as to deprive prisoners of phone access altogether.” Id. at 656. That is not the situation that plaintiffs have alleged here. Rather, 21 plaintiffs concede in their complaints that they regularly have access to telephones in prison, albeit not with the frequency they would like due to the higher costs of using the phones. (See 22 Banks/San Mateo TAC ¶ 24 (“He attempts to stay in close contact with his wife [] and calls her at least twice a day. However, due to the cost of each call he makes from jail, his wife pays a high 23 price to stay in touch with her husband.”); Thatcher/Santa Clara SAC ¶ 23 (“Due to the cost of each call . . . [plaintiffs] have paid many hundreds of dollars to GTL since their son’s imprisonment.”); Harris/Contra Costa SAC ¶ 25 (same); Clark-Russell/Alameda SAC ¶ 25 24 (same).) Those allegations, however, do not give rise to a cause of action. See Johnson, 207 F.3d at 656 (“There is no authority for the proposition that prisoners are entitled to a specific rate for 25 their telephone calls and the complaint alleges no facts from which one could conclude that the rate charged is so exorbitant as to deprive prisoners of phone access altogether.”).

27 <sup>7</sup> Additionally, as noted in the Court’s prior order, the cases upon which plaintiffs rely for this proposition pertain to actual taxes, or legislative or regulatory actions taken by the 28 government, requiring payment of a licensing fee prior to being granted permission to partake in a constitutionally protected activity. (Dkt. No. 68 at 17–18 n.12.)

1 rights. However, plaintiffs offer no support for this proposition. The cases cited by plaintiffs all
2 pertain to conspiracy and enterprise liability.<sup>8</sup> Plaintiffs raised a similar argument in the context of 3 their equal protection claim, which the Court previously dismissed with prejudice. In that context, 4 the Court found that “whether the fees are impermissible taxes under the California constitution
5 would not establish plaintiffs as similarly situated to the public-at-large, but rather simply 6 invalidate the fees altogether for everyone.” (Dkt. No. 68 at 24.) Similarly, the invalidation of the 7 fees under the California constitution would simply invalidate them altogether, but has no impact 8 on whether the actions were violations of plaintiffs’ First Amendment rights.

9 For the foregoing reasons, none of plaintiffs’ arguments made in opposition to the motions
10 to dismiss persuades. Thus, for this additional reason, the Court finds that dismissal of the actions 11 is appropriate. Accordingly, the Court GRANTS defendants’ motions and DISMISSES WITH 12 PREJUDICE plaintiffs’ amended complaints.

13 This Order terminates the following docket numbers in each case as follows:

14 Banks v. San Mateo, No. 16-CV-4455: Docket Number 69.

15 Thatcher v. Santa Clara, No. 16-CV-4781: Docket Number 65.

16 Harris v. Contra Costa, No. 16-CV-4795: Docket Number 57.

17 Clark-Russell v. Alameda, No. 16-CV-4816: Docket Number 55.

18 The Clerk shall close the files above.

19 IT IS SO ORDERED.

20 Dated: October 12, 2017

YVONNE GONZALEZ ROGERS

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT JUDGE

21
22
23
24 <sup>8</sup> See Bedford Cut Stone Co. v. Journeyman Stone Cutters' Ass'n of N. Am., 274 U.S. 37, 25 55 (1927) (“Where the means adopted are unlawful, the innocent general character of the 26 organizations adopting them or the lawfulness of the ultimate end sought to be attained, cannot 27 serve as a justification.”); Pettibone v. United States, 148 U.S. 197, 203 (1893) (“A conspiracy is 28 sufficiently described as a combination of two or more persons, by concerted action, to accomplish a criminal or unlawful purpose, or some purpose not in itself criminal or unlawful, by criminal or unlawful means . . .”); United Steelworkers of Am. v. Phelps Dodge Corp., 865 F.2d 1539, 1549 (9th Cir. 1989) (“A conspiracy is a combination of two or more persons, by concerted action to accomplish some unlawful purpose, or to accomplish some lawful purpose by unlawful means.”).